Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks on May 18–24th, 2025

Capture the excitement this spring! Come join Nature Exposed Tours

Experience the thrill of photographing wildlife and breathtaking landscapes in Grand Teton and Yellowstone National Parks this spring! From majestic animals in their natural habitats to the iconic peaks and valleys, this trip offers endless opportunities to capture the best of both worlds in nature photography.

Why you don't want to miss this trip!

Intimate group size: With only 6 photographers, you'll have plenty of room to capture the stunning views and receive personalized instruction.

Experienced guides: Our guides have spent many years exploring Yellowstone and the Tetons area. They know which roads to take and where to position you to capture incredible images.

Hands-on instruction: As a professional photographer with over 40 years of experience, we'll be there to guide you every step of the way, offering tips and techniques to help you get the perfect shots.

Spring is bursting with new life: See the bears as they emerge with their cubs, bison roaming the tundra with their calves nicknamed red dogs, and the mama elk trying to hide their calves from predators.

But here's the catch—this trip is filling up fast, and we only have a few of spots left! Don't miss out on the opportunity to capture this awe-inspiring scenery and elevate your nature and wildlife photography.
